The people of Bountiful for many years have been aware of the fact that public entertainment is essential, and that opera and drama is one means by which the Omarto young may be refined. They have learned, long since, that facilities for public entertainment are too limited. A few weeks since, it was proposed by some of the leading business men that the citizens of Bountiful be asked to subscribe stock for Bountiful be asked to subscribe stock for the purpose of erecting an opera house. A meeting was called to convene March 20. On that evening, subscriptions were taken to the amount of $12,000. Many others are desirous to secure stock, but as it is not yet determined what the capital stock shall be a short delay in that direction is necessitated. No doubt that a house such as is readed with security that a house such as is readed with security and the security of the security needed will cost at least $20,000. A com-mittee was appointed to draft by laws and ncorporation papers.

The building will be so constructed that the lower part may be used for carrying on a mercantile business while in the upper part will be a hall with one crede and a parquette. There is no reason to believe that the people do not neartly endorse this move. Active steps should be taken to effect this most important plan. An opera house would not only do credit to hast Bountiful but it would be greatly enjoyed by West and South Bountiful as well as

"ALL THE COMFORTS OF HOME."

Gillette's much-heralded farce-comedy, "All the Comforts of Home," which has been boomed as only the Frohmans and Hayman's know how to boom, reached Salt Lake last evening, and was played before a fine audience-fine both in point of num bers and as to quality of make up. Probably one-half the gathering-and threequarters of the female part of it-came out because the name of Henry Miller headed the cast, and of those three fourths we suppose two-thirds went home in mourn ing-mourning that their ideal lover should have descended from his pedestal to play rattle-brain barum-scarum comedy part, a untike the Henry of their dreams is if he were Ned Harrigan of Jim Polk him-seif. Of course he was handsome, graceful, and ensy as ever, and nothing he could do would be bad, but here his ad-mirers have cherished the memory of "The Wife," "Held by the Enemy" and "Snenmirers have cherished the memory of "The Wife," "Held by the Eaemy" and "Shen-andoah" so long that it was like the rude awakening from a beautiful dream to see him the central figure in a rollicking farce comedy. He got a hig reception and played his part with the dush it required. The comedy was laughed over-howied over would be mere appropriate and the other clever people, notably Kate Denin Wison, the strong minded wife and Mr. Eliwards the heapensed husband were excellent, and the hilarity of the night was largely drawn forth by their enneators.
